YEAR IN REVIEW

Middlebury College 2015-2016

The 2015-16 academic year begins with the introduction of Middlebury's 17th president, Laurie L. Patton. The Middlebury Board of Trustees voted unanimously to appoint her to the presidency, thus making Patton Middlebury's first woman president when she takes office effective July 1, 2015. She will succeed Ronald D. Liebowitz, who has served as president of Middlebury College since 2004. This school year is certainly a historic one and brings many causes for celebration.

September

Middlebury's new class arrives on campus. About 590 first years arrive in September 2015 and another 100 in February 2016 as members of the Class of 2019. This year's accepted students were selected among 8,894 applicants, the second largest number in the College's history. It is particularly notable that out of this year's class, 17 percent of the students admitted are first generation applicants, meaning they are the first in their family to attend college. The admitted students come from 49 states (all except North Dakota) and 50 countries.

The College unveiled a memorial tree on September 19th in honor of Nathan Alexander '17, who passed away last spring. Students, faculty, staff, and Alexander's family members gathered for the dedication service on the plaza in front of Ross Dining Hall.

The 2015 Clifford Symposium explored The "good" Body, bringing scholars and creative minds together for a weekend of workshops, lectures, screenings and activities. The symposium stimulates dialogue about the human body, beginning with Barak adé Soleil's keynote address.

In the final days of September, the college breaks ground on a new residential complex, the Ridgeline Townhouses.

October

October was a full month for the institution, beginning with Fall Family Weekend. Students and their families enjoy a wonderful weekend with countless activities. During the weekend, the Ward Memorial Prize is awarded to first year student Nina Colombotos.

The Middlebury Phi Beta Kappa chapter inducts 10 students as new members. The students include: Katherine Elizabeth Baughman '16, Elise Katherine Cabral '16, Benjamin Marshall Clark '16, Analeisa Ying Iai Gladding-Hinton '16, Katherine Ramsey Hamilton 15.5', Benjamin Dunning Harris '16, andrew Michael Kreuzman '16, John Gregory Loebs '16, Brian Andrew Rowett '16, and Hyeon-Seok Yu '16.. They have qualified to be Phi Beta Kappa members based on their academic records for the past three years.

On October 11, 2015 the college holds an inauguration ceremony for the Laurie L. Patton, Middlebury's 17th president. Almost 1,000 people celebrate to watch the ceremony on an ideal New England fall day. Marna C. Whittington, chair of the Middlebury Board of Trustees, presented President Patton with the Gamaliel Painter cane. In her inaugural address, President Patton describes the institution as a place with "that determined, engaged optimism."

After welcoming in the new, the college welcomes back alumni for Homecoming for a weekend of peak fall foliage.The Panthers win all five varsity competitions, including a win over football rival, Williams college, and soccer victories. Homecoming includes the 39th Alumni Leadership Conference. Over the weekend, there is an evening of storytelling, "Cocoon" and a capella performances by the Bobolinks and Mamajamas.

Middlebury C.V. Schools Abroad announces opening a school in Morocco, When the school opens in the Fall of 2016, it will be the 17th school abroad and the second official Middlebury program in the Arabic-speaking world.

October concludes with the naming of the New Dean of Students, Baishakhi Taylor.

November

As the refugee crisis in Europe becomes more intense, the Rohatyn Center holds a panel to analyze the crisis. It includes lectures from Jennifer Hyndman, the director at the Centre for Refugee Studies at York University in Toronto, Judith Kumin, the former director for the United Nation's refugee agency in Europe, Alison Mountz, a visiting professor of Canadian studies at Harvard University, and Roman Graf, Middlebury professor German and comparative literature. A few weeks later, Middlebury faculty, including Professors Erik Bleich, Jeffrey Cason, Sebnem Gumuscu, Nadia Horning, and Ophelia Egiène, put the ISIS attacks in Paris in context.

The Athletics Hall of Fame inducts 10 new members. Over 200 people attend the gala ceremony to celebrate John Corbisiero '50, Amy DiAdamo Foster '97, Heidi George '98, Roy Heffernan '78, Sladja Kovijanic Carton '93, Alfred "Sonny" Dennis '55, Michelle Labbe Hunter '01, Walter "Duke" Nelson '32, Jeff Thomsen '83 and Karin Von Berg Noyes '81.

The Middlebury College Field Hockey Team won its second NCAA Championship, beating top-ranked Bowdoin in the finals.

Middlebury signs the American Campuses Act on Climate Pledge, joining over 200 colleges and universities across the U.S., emphasizing its commitment to reduce greenhouse gas emissions, campus sustainability and resilience.

December

In the beginning of the month, there is a Candlelight Vigil to End Homelessness, reminding students and the Middlebury community that although some Middlebury students cannot wait to get to the Snow Bowl to ski in the winter, for many residents of Vermont, winter means nights sleeping outside in the cold.

Following signing the White House Climate Pledge, Middlebury students advance the college's commitment to the environment. Pioneered by Ali Cook '16, a new electric vehicle charging station opens. Ten Middlebury students from the Environment Studies Senoir Seminar, Allie Cohen '16, Jordan Collins '15.5, Mara Gans '15.5, Shaojin Li '16, Jess Parker 15.5', Josh Brosnan '16, Paul Lagasse '16, Sawyer Olson '16, Sydney Sanders '16, and Virginia Wiltshire-Gordon '16 present their findings at the State House in Montpelier on Vermont's proposed carbon pollution tax.

January

The new year begins with the faculty voting to reinstate the Pass/D/Fail option at Middlebury. Faculty also voted on a new set of culture and civilizations requirements.

The Anderson Freeman Resource Center (AFC) opens on Saturday, January 16th. Many events were held over the weekend to celebrate the opening, including keynote speaker Kimberlé Crenshaw. The AFC will function as a center for students and the College Community to come together in an inclusive environment.

The College notified 338 early admission applicants of their admission into the Middlebury College Class of 2020. The early admission class represents 49 percent of the Class of 2020 and hails from 34 states, and 15 countries. 25 percent of those admitted are students of color, this is the highest percentage of students of color admitted through early decision in the College's history.

Middlebury students celebrate the life and legacy of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. on Friday January 22nd by volunteering for a day of serving the community. Organized by the Community Engagement Office and the Anderson Freeman Resource Center, this event provides students with the opportunity to address community needs.

February

The College celebrates the 124 seniors—the Feb Class of 2015.5—who are completing their undergraduate careers at Middlebury. Feb Celebration weekend is a grand affair, consisting of a Mead Chapel Ceremony and the annual ski down at the Snow Bowl.

The incoming Feb Class of 2019.5 is welcomed to campus amid a blanket of snow on the ground. The mid-year class represents 31 states and 4 foreign countries.

The annual off-campus housing lottery was conducted on Tuesday, February 16th. The lottery allows for a total number of 75 students to live off-campus, which is nearly a 25 percent drop from last year's 95 students. The new Ridgeline Complex, set to open in the summer of 2016, has a lot to do with the limitations on off-campus housing.

Dining Services at the College announces its decision to stop selling energy drinks stating that they lead to "increased alcohol consumption, increased likelihood to drive while intoxicated, increased probability of use of other intoxicating substance and increased participation in high-risk sexual activity."

Karen L. Miller will join the College in 2016 as the new Vice President for Human Resources and the Office of Risk and Compliance. Miller will be the first person to serve as Vice President for both Human Resources and the Office of Risk and Compliance, joining the senior administration.

The 93rd annual Winter Carnival unfolds with an ice show, fireworks, games, collegiate skiing events, and the Winter Ball. With the unusually warm temperatures this year, a great deal of man-made snow is produced in order to fill the Snow Bowl.

March

Dining Services' decision to ban energy drinks has caught the attention of national media and has since undergone much scrutiny. Outlets such as Cosmopolitan, The Huffington Post, and Yahoo News write articles about the ban and the news soon spread across America.

On March 8th, the Gender, Sexuality, and Feminist Studies department awards Elizabeth Dunn '18 with the Alison Fraker Essay Prize.

The American Enterprise Institute (AEI) Club, in collaboration with the Economics and Political Science Departments hosts Scott Winship to speak on March 3rd. Winship, the Walter B. Wriston Fellow at the Manhattan Institute, presented a talk titled, "Inequality, Poverty, and Policy."

The College hosts its 5th annual Miracle Network Dance Marathon on March 4th. The 10-hour event includes dancing, live performances, local food, and celebrations, raising over $18,000 to support the University of Vermont Children's Hospital.

The Student Government Association (SGA) passes the Club Sports Funding Methodology bill on March 13th. The proposal creates a committee tasked with developing alternative methods for funding club sports on campus by March 7th, 2015.

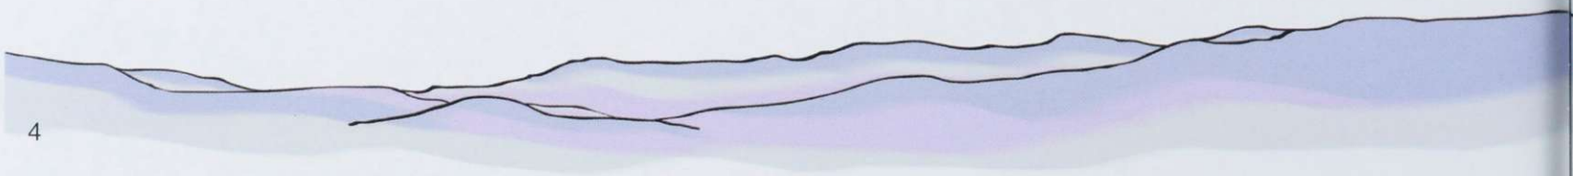
The College joins the Institute for International Education's (IEE) Syria Consortium. Middlebury College and the Middlebury Institute of International Studies at Monterey are two of 50 schools in the consortium committed to admitting refugees from the Syrian civil war and giving them scholarships.

On March 10th, students host a bar night at 51 Main, an event they hope will grow into an integral part of Middlebury's social scene.

Middlebury extends offers of admission to 1,042 students in its regular decision round for the Class of 2020. That brings the total number of admitted students this year to 1,415, which includes 373 students who were admitted through the College's early decision rounds in December and early February. In all, this year's accepted students are selected from among 8,820 applicants, the fourth largest number in the College's history. Overall this year, Middlebury has admitted 16 percent of its applicants.

A live lottery for the new Ridgeline Townhouses is held on March 21st. 80 senior students are granted spaces in the new complex, opening Fall 2016.

On March 24th, the College hosts a faculty-led discussion dinner about inclusivity. The meeting is the first in a series of scheduled talks for the semester as part of the wider, ongoing conversation about diversity and inclusivity on campus.



April

More than 300 students in nearly every academic discipline display their academic work at the College's tenth annual Spring Student Symposium. The two-day event features scholastic work in the performing arts, visual arts, natural sciences, social sciences, and the humanities.

Burns headlines the Spring Concert hosted by MCAB at the Chip Kenyon '89 Arena on Saturday, April 9th; masses of students turn out for the concert.

The David K. Smith '42 Economics Symposium takes place April 16th and is titled "Economics of Skin Tone, Gender, Ethnicity and Diaspora." Many speakers are invited to engage at this event, including keynote speaker, Klaus F. Zimmerman.

Marina Toy '17 wins the SGA election and will serve as president for the 2016-2017 school year. "I am so incredibly excited and honored to be elected SGA President," says Toy. "Thank you so much to the over 1,500 [students] who took the time to vote, I promise I will not let you down."

UMOJA, the African Student Organization, hosts the 2016 AMKA Conference on Saturday, April 23rd. The annual conference is the fourth hosted by the organization and is intended to awaken the College community to relevant issues regarding Africa – the Swahili term "AMKA," means "to awaken."

Jing He '17 a physics major is selected as a Goldwater Scholar by the Barry Goldwater Scholarship and Excellence in Education program. 260 students from 415 four-year colleges are selected to receive this prestigious scholarship every year.

Announced by President of the College Laurie L. Patton, JusTalks will now become mandatory for all first-years. JusTalks aims to promote social change and inclusivity by organizing powerful conversations with students.

May

President Laurie L. Patton announces that the College will implement a pilot program in fall 2016, allowing faculty and staff to bring their dogs to work.

Hundreds of students gather in Mead Memorial Chapel on May 2nd to attend "Responsibility, Reconciliation, and the Dropping of the Atomic Bombs." The event includes stories from Shigeko Sasamori, an 84 year-old survivor of the 1945 Hiroshima bombing, and Clifton Daniel, the grandson of U.S. President Harry S. Truman.

Nearly 30 students and student organizations are honored at the 2016 Dean of the College Student Leadership Awards.

The Class of 2016 celebrates the conclusion of their academic year at a commencement exercise marked by clear, sunny skies and a joyful environment. Van Jones—noted environmentalist and activist for social justice who served in the Obama Administration as a special advisor and is currently a CNN commentator—delivers the commencement address. Honorary degrees are awarded to Susan M. Collins, the senior U.S. senator from Maine, Doctor of Laws; John Grotzinger, NASA's chief scientist on the Mars rover mission, Doctor of Science; Van Jones, former special advisor to President Obama on "green jobs," Doctor of Humane Letters; Simi Linton, writer, filmmaker, and advocate for disabled people in society, Doctor of Arts; and U.S. District Court Judge William K. Sessions '69, Doctor of Laws. A sixth honorary degree, a Doctor of Humane Letters, is conferred weeks prior to Commencement to Srinivas Aravamudan, educator and champion for the humanities in contemporary society.

And the 2015-16 academic year concludes.

Jack Desmarais

Jack,

You have climbed a beautiful, challenging mountain, and the view from here is glorious! We are so proud of you!

With boundless love,

Mom, Dad & Julia

"You are the universe in ecstatic motion.
Set your life on fire!"

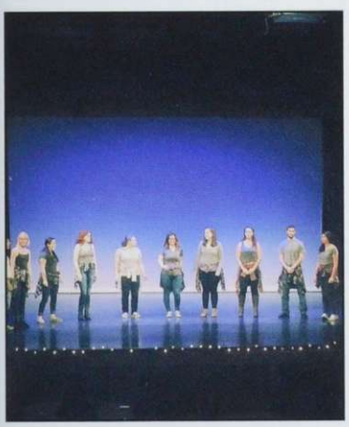
Jack Desmarais



Thanks for letting me tag along to college with you. :)

You are incredible, and I am so proud of you. Good luck on your next (significantly warmer) adventure!

Love, Julia
